

NEWS FROM NEW-JERSEY.

JERSEY CITY.

A WOMAN FOUND LYING IN THE WOODS.
Early yesterday morning a man who lives at the Glendale House, near Glendale Wood, on the west side of Bergen Heights, drove to the Fourth Precinct Police Station and said a woman was lying in a dying condition in Glendale Wood. An ambulance was sent there and the woman was found. She was not unconscious, but was unable to talk. She was well dressed in black garments and wore a black hat. She appeared to be about forty years of age. Her dress and the appearance of having been dragged over the ground. There were no marks of violence on her and nothing indicated that she had been assaulted. At the City Hospital the woman was sufficiently recovered to say she was Margaret Cogan, or Ryan, of Twenty-fourth-st., New-York. She could not tell what part of the street she lived in. Warden Osborne said yesterday that the woman was suffering from dementia and from exposure.

Martin Franks, of Fort Lee, left the home of his sister, at No. 188 Wayne-st., of this place, to go to Newark Saturday with his cousin, Theodore Franks. When the two men reached Newark, Franks, in some manner not known to 10 o'clock in the morning, two hours after the men separated, Franks entered the pawnshop of Meyer & Co., in Montgomery-st., Jersey City. He was in a dazed condition and unable to speak. He managed to make known that he wanted to obtain 25 cents by pawning his watch. He showed a watch, a money and went to the house of his sister, Mrs. Beck, on the corner of the street. Dr. Kopetichy and Dr. Bauman were called in, for it was thought that Franks had been assaulted. The doctor found no evidence of assault, no bruises or contusions, and Dr. Kopetichy said he was suffering from paralysis of the vocal cords. Yesterday Franks was much improved, but unable to speak. He made known his wants by signs.

William Bannan, a leecher keeper and a notorious character, was arrested early yesterday morning charged with having atrociously assaulted his wife. Bannan's home is at No. 61 Grand-st. and his wife's home is at No. 64 Montgomery-st. At 4:30 a. m. yesterday he went to his home and took with him a short whip with a heavy stock. His wife says that as soon as he entered the house Bannan began to beat her with the butt end of the whip. When her husband ceased the beating Mrs. Bannan was in a frightful condition. He was locked up, but was released on a bail bond. He will be arraigned before Judge O'Donnell today if his wife is able to appear against him.

Fire destroyed a stable yesterday morning owned by James Warner, in the rear of Nos. 408 and 410 Henderson-st. Three horses which were in the stable were burned to death. The loss on the horses and stock was estimated at $1,500, and on the building $600.

RUTHERFORD.

THE REV. F. J. CLAYTON FORBIDS SERVICES.
After the vestry election in Grace Church last spring, which resulted in a victory for the friends of the Rev. Francis J. Clayton, the rector, the church of the old Episcopal families in Rutherford met on a month's vacation, many of the seceders attended the church services, but when the rector returned they again absented themselves. Some attended services in New-York City and some went to other Rutherford churches. Among those who left the church were a number of members of the Ladies' Aid Society, who organized an association known as the "Prudens Futuri Society." The hall of the Engine Company No. 2 was engaged for the purpose, and the announcement was made that Professor William Esler would conduct services there yesterday morning. Application had been made some time ago to Bishop Starkey, of the Diocese of Newark, for permission to hold Episcopal services outside of Grace Church, but he refused to grant the petition; and Mr. Clayton wrote a letter forbidding the services to be held, and gave it to Vestmen Wickware and Milner for delivery. They appeared at the hall before the service had begun and gave the letter to Mr. Esler, who read it and then conducted the services, the vestrymen sitting in the congregation, which numbered about sixty persons. When the services were over the letter was read, and caused the services were over. In the congregation were Charles Barker, a former warden of Grace Church; Messrs. Collins and Huntington, members of last year's vestry; and Mrs. Frederick Hasbrouck, Mrs. Pierre Boucher, Mrs. W. P. Elliott, Mrs. Richard Allison, Mrs. William Haywood and Mrs. Bullington, formerly prominent members of the Grace Church Ladies' Aid Society.

Meanwhile Mr. Clayton, speaking in Grace Church to about 300 people, explained that the other services were advertised as "Episcopal services," whereas in fact the Bishop of the diocese had refused to sanction them. It was said yesterday that, in spite of the prohibition, Sunday services would continue to be held at the hall. On the other hand, it was said that the use of the word "Episcopal" would not be allowed, and that if necessary legal means would be taken to prevent the use of the name as applied to any services in the parish held outside the jurisdiction of Grace Church.

ELIZABETH.

Five accident cases were taken on Saturday to the City Hospital. John Kelleher, sixteen years old, had both legs run over in the morning, and died a few hours later. In the afternoon Timothy Hagan, a young tradesman, had his left forearm crushed so badly that it had to be amputated below the elbow. A scaffold on which some carpenters were at work at First-ave. and Centre-st. broke, throwing Frederick Scharp and Edward Preuss twenty feet on a picket fence. Scharp had his thigh fractured and was badly bruised about the body, while his companion was severely bruised and hurt internally.

The congregation of Grace Episcopal Church yesterday took formal possession of their new parish building. It was opened with a benediction service by Bishop Scarborough. A celebration of the Holy Communion took place at 7:30 o'clock, and a handsome new memorial brass cross was placed on the altar. At 11:30 o'clock morning prayer and the benediction were delivered by the bishop and a sermon by Dean Holman. There was a service for children at 2:30 p. m., with addresses, and the bishop baptized the youngest child of the rector, the Rev. Henry H. Sleeper. There was also evening prayer, followed by a sermon by Bishop Scarborough. The new structure is of brick and granite, is two stories in height, and is extremely attractive. The ground on which it stands, together with twenty other lots, is a gift to the parish from Mrs. Elizabeth Dean, of London, England.

At St. Michael's Church yesterday the Rev. Anthony Stein, who was ordained the Monday previous at St. John's Church and who is the son of Francis Stein, one of the founders and chief members of St. Michael's parish, celebrated his first mass. He was escorted from the parsonage to the church by St. Michael's Society. All the girls in the parsonage took part in the procession. They were attired in white and wore floral wreaths. Father Stein was assisted by the Rev. Father Carroll as deacon. Father Von Heiligen preached the sermon, Father Stein officiating afterward at the rectory, and was warmly congratulated by the parishioners.

It was an error the report that Willis W. Parks had been selected to run on the Democratic ticket for the Twenty-fourth Ward. The vacancy caused by Superintendent L. B. Miller's declination remains yet unfilled. Mr. Parks has been selected to run for the Twenty-fourth Ward ticket, but he will run for Alderman, Second Ward ticket.

ORANGE.

Mary Conger, a servant, about thirty-five years old, was arrested late on Saturday night, on complaint of the Rev. Father H. P. Fleming, of St. John's Roman Catholic Church. This woman has been a servant in the family of George A. Conger, of West Orange, and was found by the priest wandering around the rectory and the church, trying to get in. She was evidently insane. When taken to the police station she became violent and required three men to get her into the cell. Mr. Conger says that she is insane on the subject of religion. She would get up in the night and lighting the gas pump hours in pacing the floor wringing her hands, bemoaning her condition as one who was lost, she was committed to the County Insane Asylum yesterday afternoon.

NEWARK.

The decision of Chief Justice Beasley in regard to the constitutionality of the Board of Works law having left open the question of the power of the board to exercise legislative powers, ex-Judge Fort, who acted as counsel for the contestants of the law, proposes to apply for a writ of certiorari to take the law before the court. This will be done as soon as the Board passes any important ordinance.

The question of the appointment by the Board of Freeholders of successors to the late Freeholders Mullin and McGuffee, who were killed at the Market-st. railroad crossing a fortnight ago, has stirred up the Democratic politicians. The office pays $1,200 a year, and there are numerous aspirants, each with his clamorous following. The appointments will probably be made by the board this week.

A second case of smallpox has been reported to the Health Board. It is that of a two-year-old child of C. E. Eaton, of No. 21 North Elizabeth-st.

The pipe-line for the new water supply is now completed from the Niagara intake, in the watershed, to North Orange. With the exception of a short stretch at Pompton Plains, over which the litigation is still pending, the new water supply is now complete. The water will be turned on by January 1.

Frederick Schmidt, who hails from New-York, and his brother Gustave, a late inmate of the County Jail, got into a quarrel last night with one John T. Pratt, at Canal and Elm sts. Gustave ran to his brother's shop, and getting a cleaver, struck and bleeding his fingers. The struggle caused much

STABBED BY AN ITALIAN WOMAN.

HE ATTACKED HER IN A DRUNKEN FIT AND SUFFERED FOR IT.

Paquale Forco, a middle-aged man, who lives in Jamaica, L. I., came over to New-York yesterday and at once proceeded to paint Mulberry Bend a bright vermilion. He loaded himself with "Bend" whiskey until he had reached the amorous stage. Then he staggered down Mulberry-st. hideously leaning at every woman he met. Some of the fathers, husbands and brothers scattered about the sidewalk looked darkly at Forco, and their hands moved suggestively toward their hip pockets. It is probable that Forco would have run up against trouble long before he reached the end of his journey, even if he had not been brought up short just outside No. 50, a big tenement-house. In the doorway of the building stood Nicola Rubel, a tall, powerfully built, handsome woman who lives on the second floor. Forco no sooner set eyes on Mrs. Rubel than he rushed toward her and throwing his arms about her neck tried to kiss her. The woman broke away from him and ran up the stairs to her room. Forco following. She tried to close the door, but before she could lock it Forco drove it open and again attacked her.

Then the two rolled over the floor, beating and clawing at each other with cat-like energy. Twice Forco struck the woman in the face, but she fought with the fury of a tigress. Together they struggled out to the landing. There Mrs. Rubel broke from Forco's grasp and regaining her feet started to run up the stairs. Forco caught her by the dress and pulled her back again. Maddened with rage, and shouting and howling like wild beasts, the two struggled all the way to the head of the landing, and rolled down the stairs to the hallway.

As they touched the floor the woman's right hand was suddenly freed and a knife flashed in the air. Forco jumped up and ran into the street, followed by the woman. As he reached the sidewalk she caught him with all her force drove the knife into his right arm, severing the muscles and arteries. With the blood pouring in a stream on the ground Forco ran down the street and fell in a faint on the sidewalk. In the meantime the woman occupied by a woman named Francesca Castello. Around the house surged an excited crowd numbering many hundreds, uttering shouts and cries of vengeance.

A riot seemed imminent, and the sergeant on duty at the Elizabeth-st. police station sent extra policemen to the scene. A loudman named Walsh sent for a Chamberlain and Perkins tried to arrest the woman. Castello's door was locked. The policemen broke it open and saw the Rubel woman crouching in a corner. As they entered, she flew at them, and then all the way down the stairs and out into the street, fought and bit and tore at them like a mad creature. Finally, after a ten minute struggle, she was overpowered and carried to the Elizabeth-st. police station. Forco was brutally weakened from loss of blood when the ambulance arrived, and he was taken to the Chambers Street Hospital in a critical condition.

DR. MCGLENN WILL DEFINE HIS POSITION.

At the close of his lecture last evening at Cooper Union, on "The Pope's Admissions," Dr. McGleNN said that it had been his intention to give a lecture next Sunday evening on "The Pope's Benedictions," but as certain articles had been published during the last few days relative to the controversy in which he would be allowed to re-enter his ministry in the Roman Catholic Church, he would devote next Sunday's lecture to a carefully prepared statement of his position in relation to the Church of Rome, and would make it so emphatic and clear that there could not possibly be any mistake on the part of Archbishop Cerrigan or any one else in regard to it.

Dr. McGleNN added "I have had no interviews with any reporters on this matter, although I have read several alleged interviews with myself in the papers. I regard the matter as being too serious for publicity action, so as to leave no room for doubt as to my position. I am described by many as being an 'unbaptized' priest. They would have you picture me as having my frock forcibly pulled over my head and, yet, leaving me in my shirt sleeves. But I have my frock yet. I use it in the morning as a dressing-gown. I paid for it and it is mine and I defy anybody under the American flag to take it away from me. I am not even an ex-priest. The law of the Church says that a priest is a priest forever, and I am going to be a priest in heaven or hell. If I was walking in the streets of Rome to-day it would be the proper thing for me to wear my frock. But I will have my 'retraction' ready for the public and

A PHYSICIAN DYING FROM BLOOD POISONING.

Chicago, Nov. 15 (Special).—Dr. G. G. Parker, of Cairo, one of the prominent surgeons of Illinois, is in a critical condition at St. Luke's Hospital. Three weeks ago, while dressing a wound, he scratched his right thumb with a pair of scissors. The wound was slight, but in a few days inflammation set in. The swelling increased, extending down through the hand. When the patient was brought to hospital, the swelling slightly involved the lower portion of the forearm. Three operations were performed, but the inflammation steadily advanced and finally reached his elbow. Then the arm was amputated as a final operation. However, more or less pus from the wound has been absorbed into the doctor's system, and blood poisoning has resulted.
